PROFESSIONAL ASSOCIATIONS

- RAID (researchers in agriculture for international development)
- Crawford Fund
- Tasmanian Women in Agriculture

Olivia graduated from the University of Tasmania in 2019 and continues to study in 2020, undertaking an honours project. Her research will quantify and map the adoption pathways of innovative strategies introduced to small holder beef cattle producers in north-west Vietnam. These strategies are designed to alleviate poverty and encourage self-sustainability. The results from Olivia's honours project will be used as a basis for developing outreach and extension models for livestock production nationally and internationally.

Olivia possesses excellent communication skills and a passion for sustainable agricultural development and effective extension. Her interests include maintaining soil health, optimising animal health and sustainably managing pest and crop diseases. Olivia will work hard to build technical capacity of producers and support continued growth within the Tasmanian agricultural industry.
